Our Plan for the Day

• Introduce ourselves
• Identify our most challenging human-human interactions
• Listen to your experiences and share strategies for managing these relationships
• Discuss final thoughts
What is your human-human interaction experience?

- FAMILY
- Student Colleagues
- Acquaintances
- Course Professors
- Professional Colleagues
- Research Team
- New Contacts
- Advisor
Now, it’s your turn!

• Discuss, with your partner
  • What is your most constructive relationship (so far this year)?
  • What relationship would you like to change (this year)?
• Feedback = 2 mins
Some topics...

- Micro-aggressions and Hostility
- Cultural and International experiences
- Discrimination (Covert and Overt)
- Double-bind
- Harassment
- Being the “only” one
- Imposter syndrome
- Conflict Resolution
- Two-body problem
- Family-friendly policies
- Implicit bias
What are your stories and/or thoughts?
Scenario 1

At meetings, Peter and Mike are increasingly disrespectful towards you and Jenny: they ignore you, interrupt you, and/or poach your ideas. Your advisor, doesn't seem to notice and in fact credits your and Jenny’s ideas to Peter and Mike.
Scenario 2

Prof. Hat asks you to help out with the Graduate Recruiting Committee because 'they need a woman'. You end up doing a lot of this kind of department service and are wondering if it's worth the time and effort. But, should you/how can you say no?
Scenario 3

I have food restrictions, and when I attend conferences it’s difficult for me to join in the collaborations and network with others.

What can I do?
You can do this!

- Good human-human interaction is a daily exercise
  - You will continue to learn how to be better at it!
- Don’t ignore your experiences
  - Learn from them, but know that you have everything inside to succeed!
